

ABOUT PRO GATE

Pro Gate is BMX-meets-real-deal-engineering. All our products start with rider, track-operator and race-promoter input. Next, professional engineers who create machines for major manufacturing companies get to work designing and building.

Then it's back to the track, where prototypes are tested, and the fine-tuning that brings together those two very-different worlds takes place.

The end result is a family of products that BMXers around the world can count on, year in and year out. A product line that meets, or exceeds, global standards for safety, operability and durability.

Those who appreciate great product design know the level of innovation and care by which Pro Gate products make their way to market. Those who ride know, "it just works...every time."

About The 4-Rider System

Serving in both competition and training environments, Pro Gate's 4-Rider system is a scaled-down version of the "Straight-8" used in the Olympic Games, UCI World Championships and UCI Supercross World Cup. And while it is half the width, it is by no means half the system, as the 4-Rider uses all the top-market components and materials as the Straight-8 system.

STRAIGHT-4

ELITE STARTING SYSTEM

The Pro Gate Straight-4 starting system takes the time-tested engineering and components of our Straight-8 system and brings it into a four-rider configuration. It's a slimmer version of the gate used in the Olympic Games, UCI BMX World Championships and UCI Supercross World Cup.

Ideal for four-cross, or any discipline using a "quattro" format, the Straight-4 is known for solid construction, easy operation and low maintenance. It is also popular among BMX training centers using less-than-full-scale track configurations, and sprint-training facilities.

The Straight-4 behaves exactly the same as the Straight-8, and is a great way to give the riders the same experience, but with a smaller footprint. Call today to learn more about putting a "4" on your floor, wherever the terrain.
